

BODY OF CAPITALIST MISSING 4 MONTHS FOUND IN HIS HOME

WITH SKULL CRUSHED AND BODY
COVERED WITH QUICK
LINE

(By United Press)

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 24.—Police planned today to question several women in connection with their investigation into the murder of Jacob Charles Denton, Los Angeles capitalist, whose body was found in a newly built room in his home here. Denton had been missing four months. Neighbors told of seeing Denton scuffling with a beautiful Spanish girl on the porch of his home shortly before he disappeared.

Denton's body was found buried beneath three tons of earth in a newly built wooden tomb in the cellar of his home. The body was covered with quicklime. His hands and feet were bound and his skull was crushed.

Mrs. C. Peat rented his home which had been built at a cost of $75,000. Mrs. Peat re-rented the home on Aug. 19 to Mrs. T. T. Miller.

Anxiety over Denton was aroused when monthly allowances to his former wife, Mrs. Sarah Denton, and daughter Frances, suddenly stopped. They live in Phoenix, Ariz. They ordered an investigation and employed detectives. The finding of a wheelbarrow and loose dirt in the cellar led to the discovery of the room built to contain Denton's body. The room was sealed. Denton's automobile and a six hundred dollar diamond ring he wore were missing.

Poison Caused Death

Los Angeles, Sept. 24.—Poison and not external violence caused the death of Jacob Charles Denton, wealthy Los Angeles broker, whose body was found in a sealed tomb in the basement of a house he owned here, police believe today.

Examination of the body by medical experts failed to reveal either gun shots or evidence of other violence. First reports of physicians that Denton's skull had been fractured were found to be erroneous on more careful examination. Police have asked Denver authorities to interview Mrs. R. C. Peat, who rented the home from Denton, where the body was found.

P. P. Miller, who moved into the house when Mrs. Peat left for Denver, said Mrs. Peat had control of the renting of the house.

A pretty Spanish girl who was seen in Denton's company shortly before his disappearance and several other women, are being sought. Denton made a will on June 2, according to some reports, and that was the last date he was seen.

Police also investigated a report that Denton was seen Aug. 19, but could find no substantiation for this rumor.

Denton was to have left the city on June 2 for a trip east. He made a business engagement to be in Phoenix, Ariz., on June 3, and at Kansas City June 5. Apparently he never left here as his suitcase, all packed, was found in his room.

Mrs. J. C. Denton, divorced wife of the dead man, and Frances Denton, their fifteen year old daughter, will reach here tonight to claim the body and take charge of Denton's affairs. Examination of the "tomb" in which Denton's body was found, showed it to be a crude affair made of rough boards.

Another report being investigated, was that a Hollywood woman is now driving an automobile belonging to Denton.

Judge R. M. Avery, Denton's attorney, instituted a search for the missing man some time ago after the attorney for his daughter made an inquiry regarding his whereabouts.

Denton had lived a mysterious life, according to Judge Avery. He had dropped out of sight for months at a time during previous periods which lent plausibility to the theory that he had again gone into seclusion when reported missing in June.

Denton's second wife, formerly Dolley Mae Winters, died her last March. J. R. Denton, a brother, lives at Lawton, Mo.

AND SHOT THEM

(United Press)

St. Paul, Sept. 24.—Sylvester Snyder, twenty-seven, who yesterday confessed to killing two men near Rolla, N. D., has not been seen at his former St. Paul home for several years.

Investigation today in the neighborhood given by Snyder as his home, revealed that he has not lived in St. Paul since before he was married six years ago.

After three years of domestic trouble Snyder and his wife parted. One child, a daughter now five years old, is with her mother, Mrs. Anna Hoffman, of Sioux City.

During the time Snyder has been away he has worked on farms in Iowa and Dakota before going to Rolla, N. D., where he killed Earl and Archie Fletcher of Clearfield, Pa. It is alleged the three worked together near Marcus, Iowa.

In his confession Snyder stated that the three got into trouble over a half-breed Indian girl. While the three men were driving together he shot the two men following a fight.

He was arrested in a hotel at Minnewaukan, N. D., with the girl in the case. He confessed to State Attorney Butterwick, it was said. Sheriff Oakland took him to Cando where he was to be given a hearing today.

A. L. BRADFORD

Washington, Sept. 24.—Neither the United States nor Japan are willing to give way in the fight of Mikado's government to prevent further discrimination against Japan by California, developments today showed.

The complicated situation rapidly is becoming the most serious problem facing this government today. The situation is as follows:

The United States government will maintain its position for exclusion of Japanese immigrants, but will make a supreme effort to avoid conflicts with Japan over further discriminatory legislation in California.

Japan concedes the right of the United States to bar her immigrants, according to state department officials, but insists her subjects already in this country must not be discriminated further by passage of a new California anti-Japanese law.

Although expenditures were curtailed for automobiles, diamonds and imported cosmetics and the like, the public has increased its purchase of candy, soft drinks, tobacco and theatre and movie tickets.

Seekers of recreation still indulge in these things at the rate of nearly five billion dollars a year, or enough to pay all expenses of the government for twelve months.

Tax receipts by the government during May on sale of candy, tobacco, soft drinks and admissions, total $36,618,000.

ALL MINNESOTA JOINS HANDS WITH THE SALVATION ARMY IN HOME SERVICE WORK

Citizens of State Pledged To Raise $268,050 for Maintenance of Institutions And Extension of Work in Rural Districts—Week of October 11 to October 18 Set Aside for Financial Program—Startling Conditions of Social Disorders Revealed. Every County Helping.

Minnesota, together with twenty-three other states in the Middle West, has launched its 1920 Home Service Financial Program for the Salvation Army. The appropriation for this state has been set at $268,050, and members of the County Advisory Boards in 50 Minnesota counties are already perfecting plans for local participation.

Every township and every school district will be actively represented. All counties have received their apportionments from the State budget, and from present indications and enthusiasm every county will reach its goal.

The week of October 11th to October 18th has been set aside for the furtherance of the financial phase of the program.

"With little more than two weeks remaining before the fund raising campaign is undertaken, it is urged that nothing be left undone to raise the entire state apportionment, so that the work of the Salvation Army may be carried on successfully in the rural districts of the State as well as in the cities," said Henry C. Hanke, Chairman of the State Advisory Board, today.

The state budget of $268,050 is the lowest to be submitted to the people of Minnesota in Salvation Army history. With more than 100 prominent citizens actively representing the Salvation Army in the various counties, it means that Minnesota is now ready to assume the temporary burden of caring for the Salvation Army's needs during the next year.

The Salvation Army is already functioning in the rural districts. Its county advisory boards have referred scores of cases requiring immediate attention to Army headquarters, and many of them have been satisfactorily disposed of.

The 1920 Home Service Program calls for the fullest utilization of the sixteen major activities of the Army in every corner of the State.

Confidential studies from 60 Minnesota counties sent to Divisional Headquarters in Minneapolis by the county advisory boards, disclose an urgent need for the service the Salvation Army is giving and which it expects to continue to give.

The following figures will give some indication why the Salvation Army has deemed it necessary to carry on its Home Service Program and why it wants the united co-operation of Minnesota citizens:

Digest of the Confidential Reports of 60 Minnesota Counties, relative to local conditions as ascertained by Salvation Army Advisory Boards:

Number of total dependents, Men and Women (52 counties reporting) . . . 3,333
Total county expenditures, Maintenance and Relief (48 counties reporting) . . . $909,278.32
Desertions of Families, Husband or wife (42 counties reporting) . . . 236
Juveniles reported to county officials (47 counties reporting) . . . 3982
Delinquents sent to reform schools or institutions (34 counties reporting) . . . 660
Juveniles reported by Salvation Army Boards as needing homes immediately (17 counties reporting) . . . 39
Illegitimate births very incomplete. General estimates only (50 counties reporting) . . . 1102
Prospective girl mothers needing hospital care (19 counties reporting) . . . 42
Missing persons (53 counties reporting) . . . 1192

County officials and physicians, members of advisory boards, are a unit in declaring that maternity cases, immoral relationship and crimes against young girls are numerous and on the increase. Judges deplore the fact there are but few places, inadequate in numbers or size, where girls may be sent who appear before them on the charge of street walking or solicitation.

"From these disclosures we know that practically every community in Minnesota needs the Salvation Army, and with the success of the Financial Program, the counties may rest assured that the Army will do its utmost to effect a cure for the many social evils," said Colonel William S. Barker, divisional commander of the Army, in discussing the 1920 Home Service Program.

Among the institutions of the Army which are placed at the service of Minnesota citizens are:

St. Paul Rescue and Maternity Home, Minneapolis Industrial Home for men, St. Paul Industrial Home for men, Working Men's Hotel and Club in St. Paul, Working Men's Hotel and Club in Minneapolis, Men's Hotel in St. Paul, Missing Friends Bureau, Anti-suicide bureau, and 30 Salvation Army Corps throughout the state. The new budget calls for the erection of a Central Headquarters building and Women's hotel in Minneapolis.

FASHIONGRAMS

Many of the new black frocks are embroidered with crystal embroidery. A sporting costume shows a bright emerald green, knitted shirt and a green jumper striped with bands of red.

The Parisienne so loves pearls that she is wearing them about her wrists in the form of bracelets. This new fashion is a very attractive one. As a note of color for the hat or girdle a cluster of nasturtiums in rust red or flaming orange is the choice of the Parisienne.

It is predicted that simplicity of treatment and lack of overtrimming will be the keynote of the fall dresses. Among the new designs are simple cent dress effects, simple drapes and simple chemise styles in cloth and silk.

Natural pongee is the most in demand for outing frocks. Frequently the tan material is bound in a color such as American beauty, emerald or old blue. Again striped pongee is employed to trim the plain ground fabric.

Tailored frocks of tricot and velours are very popular among the new fall designs. The severity of these frocks is relieved by the trimming of beads or embroidery. The use of

LINEN IN FAVOR FOR SUMMER

Starch Favorite Fabric in Loveliest Colors—Must Be Embroidered to Be in Style.

It is delightful to see that real linen, as transparent and filmy as the finest of handkerchiefs, is being worn once more, says Harper's Bazar. In the loveliest of colors it is abroad on summer sands and lawns, but never as an undressed fabric; it is invariably embroidered either in fine white cotton braid, in matching wool, or in satin ribbon. The ornamentation may take the form of small motifs applied at equal distances, or of a single motif covering the entire front of the skirt, but ornamentation there must be. There is one other mode of adornment for these frocks—broad bands of perforation exquisitely embroidered often give the effect of entre-deux.

This renaissance of linen, however, has by no means submerged the popularity of organdie, which is used in many charming ways this season. Slips of black silk or satin, or of some color, are often worn under full length, sleeved tunics of organdie panels and tunics is also a feature of these frocks.

Ostrich is being used to trim many of the smartest frocks. This particular trimming is meeting with much success where it is being used to trim the tunics of skirts. In some cases the bands of ostrich are so thick that they resemble fur.

Daring Combination of Colors.

A simply made evening dress in which a daring combination of colors appears, producing an effect that while sounding a bit lurid is made in this way: A lavender underdress is barred with very narrow purple velvet ribbon in the form of a lattice work, with here and there red roses caught to the lattice. Velling this gay slip is a simple frock of old time tulle made with a full skirt and sleeveless bodice having a V-shaped neckline. A sash of dull blue girdles it at the normal waistline.

Founded by John F. Woodhead and Serves Well its Territory in Crow Wing County

The Woodhead Motor Co. was founded by John F. Woodhead in 1916 and serves well its territory in Crow Wing county.

The store, housing a well planned parts department, is located on the corner of Front and South Seventh streets.

The Ford service station on South Seventh street between Maple and Norwood streets is the most up-to-date plant of its kind. Mechanics at the station received special instruction at the big Ford factory.

The illustrations give an idea of the machinery carried for doing repair work promptly and efficiently.

Any time Mr. Woodhead stages a Ford picnic or a tractor demonstration it is a success. The Ford picnic at the shores of Mille Lacs lake, for instance, assembled a crowd of over 5,000 and was one of the most successful ever held anywhere.

In Cherry Time

By JESSIE E. SHERWIN

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"What does Cousin Aggie say?" Inquired Mrs. Buxton of her seventeen-year-old daughter, as the latter read a letter she had just received.

"Just commonplace news, mamma," responded Nellie Buxton. "She writes me, however, to be sure to tell you that they have the most wonderful cherry crop ever was, and that Uncle Silas will ship you three bushels in about two weeks."

"H'm!" remarked Mrs. Buxton, a trifle discomposed. "I have heard that the cherry crop is phenomenal all over the country and no one to pick them except at three times the usual rate. It is thoughtful of Silas to remember us, but I wonder if he understands that the city is rationed on sugar."

"Can't we double up on buying and have enough on hand to use when the fruit arrives?" suggested Nellie.

"Hardly. One grocer allows us just a pound a day, and then at five times above normal price. I don't mind that so much, for sugar is a necessity."

"I suppose it would take quite a lot to do up three bushels of cherries," ventured Oscar Reed, who was sitting by, but usually very uncommunicative when in the presence of the

It's going to make me think of her mother. How am I going to work it? I declare! It's beginning to rain," and, without storm coat or umbrella Oscar hastened his steps and sought shelter under an awning in front of a store given over to second-hand goods of varied sorts, including clothing. The array of suits, hats, overcoats and the like was heterogeneous enough to allow a wide choice of attire. Then as Oscar's gaze rested upon the big department store opposite, his eyes glowed brightly and he smiled.

"The very combination!" he chuckled. "I have the dinner hour to was expressed by keeping the rest of the family at work in the kitchen, while she sneaked him and Nellie out into the garden with the remark:

"Too many cooks spoil the broth," and the first of many blissful hours alone with Nellie came into the fortunate young man's life.

set in motion my grand scheme for acquiring a small-sized refinery in the sugar line. Sure, I can work it. Let me see if I can manage to capture five pounds per day for two weeks. That would mean a bulk of sixty pounds, more than enough to put up those cherries furnished by Uncle Silas, and probably sweeten up the strict old lady I would be glad to cherish as a mother-in-law."

Next day Oscar visited the store of the dealer in a second-hand goods. Without much trouble he arranged to have the temporary use of such articles as he needed for his bold plan of becoming a sugar miser. He did not waste any time on needless luncheon, but entered the grocery department of the department store where one pound of the saccharine poverty was sold to a customer. Appearing first in propria persona, then with another hat and a grotesquely plaided overcoat, even with a silk tie and wearing goggles, in the crowd he was not recognized as the audacious repeater that he was.

Oscar kept track of the promised shipment from Uncle Silas. He chose the evening of their arrival for his once-a-week call upon Nellie. He found all hands pitting the fruit, but Mrs. Buxton in a gloomy mood because she had not the sugar to put up more than half a bushel.

"Nellie told me this is your birthday, Mrs. Buxton," observed Oscar innocently. "I have a little offering that may be of use to you. It's on the porch—sixty pounds of sugar."

"Say! I'll pay you double price for it, just to make you smiling and jolly again!" declared Mr. Buxton, but Oscar insisted on the free acceptance of his little gift, and Mrs. Buxton fairly beamed upon him. Her heartfelt acknowledgment of his clever donation

DOUGHBOY HAS A GRIEVANCE

Why in the World Don't Frenchmen Give Proper Pronunciation to Their Absurd Words?

Take the city of Troyes, favorably known throughout the A. E. F. as a practically M. P. less burg, writes Tip Bliss in the American Legion Weekly. Naturally, any human being would pronounce it to rhyme with "noise," and go on his way rejoicing in the knowledge of a good deed well performed.

Not so the frisky prof. He calls it "Twa," though why and wherefore he bon Dieu alone knows.

But if you want to get even with the f. p., try him out with a regular word with plenty of "w's" and "l's" and "th's" in it. "Whether" is the cat's fur, as the army expression almost has it. Tackle him with "whether" and watch him goggle and stammer and sizzle and finally turn up his toes and pass away while somewhere in his insides are still resounding the last despairing notes of his infernal interpretation of a good Christian word into "vay-air-ree."

"Vay-air-ree." Shade of Babel! Now, as regards the matter of spelling. One of the Frenchman's pet monstrosities in "Kiss-a-way." Does he spell it that way? Oujia answers, no. He goes to work and unburdens himself of vowels and syllables and things until he has gotten rid of "Qu'est-ce que c'est?"

What does it mean? It means: "What is this that is?" Which is a fine healthy way of mistreating. "Huh?"

Huh is right.

HOLD POTATOES FOR HIGH PRICES

(United Press)

Caribon, Me., Sept. 24.—The greater part of the Aroostook county potato crop will be "jailed" for higher prices, if plans of potato growers are carried out.

Facing a season of low prices, the growers are said to have made preparations to store in the numerous warehouses throughout Maine their present crop of potatoes until higher prices are offered.

Growers declare they have been offered $2 a barrel for their potatoes, but this price, they claim, is just one dollar less than it cost them to grow the potatoes.

Although the potatoes are ready to dig, few buyers have appeared because of the demands of the growers. The farmers declare they will not touch the "spuds" until their price is forthcoming.

Vague Description.

Motor and Rear Axle Department at Service Station at Woodhead Motor Co.

tel this evening C. C. Hildebrand of Minneapolis will be toastmaster. He will deliver an address. "Banks," said Mr. Hildebrand, "are willing to finance farmers to buy blooded stock. The development of the farm through modern farm machinery, especially of the labor-saving device, is every bit as important."

Other speakers at the banquet will include A. J. Hayes, cashier of the First National bank of Brainerd; D. E. Miller of the Ford Motor Co. sales department; John F. Woodhead, president of the Woodhead Motor Co. of Brainerd.

The noon day lunch was served from a large tent, Wm. Garvey being the chef in charge. Long lines formed at the tent and pictures were taken of the crowd in attendance.

The Anderson Studio of Brainerd was the official photographer of the convention.

Keeping Water Cool.

The only way to keep water cool is to surround it with some material that is a bad conductor of heat, or in other words, does not pass on the heat too rapidly. The poorest conductor of heat is a vacuum or space from which the air has been excluded; hence, a thermos or vacuum flask makes the best container for cold water. Other bad conductors of heat are wood, leather, felt, horn, bone; containers made of or covered with these materials will keep liquids cooler than those made of metal or glass.

mother of the family. Mrs. Buxton had laid down some pretty stringent rules as to Nellie and her company. Oscar was allowed to call in the evening once a week only, and then he passed the hour or two granted in the same room with the family. If there was any entertainment going on Nellie did not get a chance to accept Oscar's invitation as an escort unless her parents accompanied them.

"Nellie is too young to get a lot of love nonsense into her head," Mrs. Buxton had once remarked, and Oscar overheard her and considered her an ogress, but he was polite enough ever to deny his present sparse privileges and to defend his good graces in every way possible.

So when Mrs. Buxton computed the sugar needs of the cherry season ahead, Oscar made a mental note of the same and, recalling as well that it would be her birthday about the time Uncle Silas would ship the cherries, he took credit to himself for devising a scheme that would certainly win the favorable opinion of the mother of his inamorata.

"Said anything to your mother about the picnic we are invited to, Nellie?" questioned Oscar breathlessly in the bare minute and a half allowed them to linger on the veranda.

"Oh, yes, and I can go, of course, but the family are signed to attend too," and Oscar sighed at the prospect he had anticipated of having Nellie all day to himself.

"I won't get discouraged," he ruminated on his way homeward bound. "Sugar! It has always made me think of sweet darling Nellie! Now

OUTRAGES IN IRELAND

Reports of British outrages in Ireland, when coming from Irish sources, are naturally taken with reservations, because of the self-interest back of them and because more or less allowance is made for Gaelic over-emphasis. When Englishmen protest against the way their own government treats Ireland, their words command attention. A remarkable letter was published in the London Times recently, signed by many eminent English publicists, including H. G. Wells, the novelist; Sir Philip Gibbs, the war correspondent so well known on this side of the Atlantic; and C. P. Scott, editor of the Manchester Guardian, a paper which is regarded by many as the most dependable publication in Great Britain. The letter tells of the injustice wrought by the court-martial system lately established, and charges that there is now in force a "military lynch law" applied "not to criminals, but to villages and towns of Ireland." The complaints say:

"It is a commonplace experience for whole streets to be burned, creameries destroyed and life taken in indiscriminate reprisals by which soldiers and policemen avenge the murder of constables. Not for a century has there been such an outbreak of military violence in these islands. The government has failed to restrain or punish this violence, and has now taken steps to prevent any civilian court from calling attention to it."

"If these proceeds," the protest adds, "were of a kind to put an end to outrages, and not to cause further mischief, they would not have called down the condemnation of such men as Lord Montagu, Lord Shafersbury, Sir Horace Plunkett and other leading Irishmen."

Herein lies a fault of this procedure which is no less objectionable than its essential injustice—its futility. The "military violence" perpetrated by the British army, unwillingly for the most part, under orders from the Lloyd George government, fails of its aim, and only makes the situation worse. It is strangely at variance, too, with the humane policy preached and practiced by Great Britain during the war with Germany.

It is bad enough for the Irish to murder constables, no matter what may be the provocation. That is probably as bad, in many cases, as anything the Germans did. But shall the British therefore murder Irishmen and burn their property indiscriminately? They refrained from such reprisals against the Germans, and won much praise and self-respect. What can they win by belying their own principles in Ireland?

TARIFF APPEARS OUT OF POLITICS

FEDERAL COMMISSION CREATED IN 1916 HAS BEEN DOING VAST AMOUNT OF WORK.

IS ACCEPTED AS A FIXTURE

Present Congress Has Shown a Disposition to Accept Its Information Without Question and to Act on Its Suggestions.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—Has the tariff been taken out of politics? By an act of congress signed September 8, 1916, the United States tariff commission was created. It is composed of six members, appointed by the president by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and not more than three of the commissioners shall be members of the same political party. It was the desire of congress to provide for a commission that would be as free as possible from political influence.

It will soon be four years since the commission was created. During these years it has done an enormous amount of work. It is today one of the busiest branches of the federal government. If congress should be called in extra session next week to revise the tariff, it would find the commission ready to supply it with accurate information on practically every branch of this intricate subject. Surveys and reports on more than 2,000 items in the existing tariff law have been made by the commission. Some of the reports have been printed, but the bulk of the information is in manuscript form.

The present congress has shown a disposition to accept, without question, the information supplied it by the commission. During the recent session the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, in preparing several so-called "pop-gun" tariff bills, depended entirely on the commission for guidance.

Considered a Fixture.

Congress, as a whole, now looks on the tariff commission as a fixture. At the recent session an ample appropriation for carrying on the work of the commission was made.

The law creating the commission provides that the commission shall prosecute any inquiry necessary to its duties in any part of the United States, or in any foreign country. Only recently the commission sent one of its investigators into Germany, with instructions to make a general survey of industrial conditions there.

Three other investigators, who were selected because of their expert qualifications, for the study of particular industries, have been sent to Great Britain. They were directed to give chief consideration to certain of the metal and textile industries, but they will also devote attention to general industrial conditions.

Two other investigators have been sent to Japan. The commission has published a comprehensive survey of Japanese trade during the war, and it plans to supplement this report with a study of the tariff system and industrial conditions of Japan. It is taking notice of the concern in some quarters of the United States at the present time with regard to Japanese competition.

Makes Some Suggestions.

The function of the commission is to furnish congress with information, but it is not prohibited from making suggestions with respect to policies. It has recommended to the present congress the enactment of legislation

Gets Pleasant Surprise

"About 6 months ago my father was very sick with his stomach, which had been troubling him for several years. Three doctors said he had cancer and one said it was gall stones—all agreed an operation necessary, but on account of his age I was afraid to risk it. I at once bought a bottle for father and he is now as strong as a bear and can eat more ham and cabbage than any 3 men." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. ## Are You World Informed?

It has been said that the world is divided into two classes—those who are interesting and interested and those who are not. The first of these are the people who know—know what the rest of the world is doing. They have an interest outside of the narrow confines of their neighborhood or town. They are not bound in by the limitations of their own inability to travel. Their horizon goes beyond the village gossip and local mouth to mouth news. They are not content to plumb the depths of merely their neighbor's mind. They are citizens of the world.

NORTHWEST NEWS

Corn Palace in Circus Tent.

Mitchell, Sept. 24.—Mitchell's famous "Corn Palace" next week, will be staged in a circus tent.

The old Corn Palace where for 27 years the corn products of South Dakota have been on exhibition has been sold and a new Corn Palace is being erected. It was impossible to complete the new building in time for the annual festival this year, so a big three ring circus tent was secured. The dates for the show are Sept. 25 to Oct. 2.

Children Need Physician's Care

Fargo, Sept. 24.—Eighty-five per cent of the children of North Dakota are in need of a physician's care according to examinations made by field nurses. "It is a crime to let these children grow to manhood and womanhood carrying this handicap which may be removed," said Miss Cora Farley, anti-tuberculosis worker, who charged that these figures demonstrate the need of public nurses.

Ancient Chinese Art.

Attention has been called to a notable addition to the treasures of the British museum, in the shape of a colossal Chinese figure in wood. It is sculptured from cleverly jointed blocks, and represents a figure, in a sitting posture, five feet, eight inches in height. It is the first specimen of its kind to be added to the national collections in Great Britain; the date is thought to be from 1125 to 1270 A. D. It is to be hoped that the interest aroused will lead to further study of this branch of art. It is pointed out by a writer in the Burlington Magazine of Art that in Cleveland, O., a competent scholar in connection with the museum is sent to China to study the art and collect suitable art treasures on its behalf.

Cultivating Edible Bamboo.

The Japanese edible bamboo has been successfully introduced into the southern portion of the United States by the department of agriculture. Several plantations are now established in Georgia and Louisiana. Popularization of the bamboo will furnish large home-grown supplies of this useful timber required by our manufacturing industries. The giant grass grows a foot a day, and its 50-foot stalk is well adapted for making frames, furniture, ladders, trellises and barrel hoops. The new sprout is a delicious vegetable and resembles asparagus in flavor and in the manner of its preparation. There is an increasing demand in America for the bamboo timber, and also for the 'edible bamboo shoot.

PARTRIDGES PLENTIFUL

Birds Fly from Along Roadside as Automobiles Traverse Country-side

Motoring through country north of Brainerd and on to Akeley one scares up at night numerous partridges and all indications point to the best kind of shooting when the season opens in October. The birds are fat and plump as any tame barn yard chicken.

In some districts near Akeley the birds have become domesticated and rather about the farm homes and feed with the tame chickens. The farmers have taken the best of care of the partridges and they feel almost like stringing up some "sooner" when the latter fires broadside near their barn at some of the tame partridges.

"Goes Broke" in Vaudeville.

It is said that the first man to undertake to produce vaudeville in America was Silas W. Steegs of San Francisco, who inherited $400,000 from his uncle in 1865, and not being used to handling money in large quantities, started to spend it freely. He went on a trip to Europe and spent most of his time at the Alhambra music hall in London, and launched a project to start the "New York Alhambra." His idea was approved by a number of amusement people, and he hired hundreds of them to come to the United States. But his money ran out and he left his party on a boat in New York bay and disappeared.

Muscle Massage in Rickets.

As an aftermath of undernourishment during the war period, rickets has become a common disease among children in Germany. To stimulate the flabby muscles of these little patients, without risking malformation of the softened bones, many curious devices have come into use, according to an illustrated story appearing in the August issue of Popular Mechanics magazine. In treating the jaw and neck muscles, for example, the subject is laid on an inclined board, while the nurse stands at the head and manipulates a harness of two straps.

Indian Pilgrimage.

Fifty thousand Indians from all parts of Mexico recently completed their week of homage to their patron saint, the Virgin of Guadalupe, and their pilgrimage to the shrine of the Virgin.

"California."

The name was first applied to Lower California, and probably was taken from the name of a fictitious island abounding in gold and precious stones, which was described in the Spanish romance, "Las Sergas de Esplandian," published in 1510.

HOW H. J. HEYN MET HIS DEATH

Former Member of the Brainerd Elks Lodge Killed in an Automobile Accident

CAR UPSET AND PINNED HIM

Caught Under Steering Wheel and Severely Crushed and His Neck Broken by Impact

In a letter to Harry Carlson, secretary of Brainerd Lodge of Elks, C. R. Mitchell, secretary of the Martinsville, Ind., lodge described how H. J. Heyn member of the Brainerd lodge, met his death in an automobile accident.

Mr. Heyn lived in LaFayette Ind. He was killed in an accident a few miles north of Martinsville on Sunday night near midnight. He was driving a machine and was accompanied by Miss York, to whom he was soon to be married. A couple of friends occupied the rear seat of the car.

After passing another car, the machine struck loose gravel at a point in the road that is narrow and filled in. The car slipped over the edge and went down the bank, turned upside down, catching Miss York and the two men underneath. The other lady was thrown clear of the car. Miss York and the gentleman were not seriously injured, but Mr. Heyn was caught under the steering wheel and severely crushed as well as sustaining a broken neck. He died almost instantly, as either injury was sufficient to cause almost instant death.

SENATOR HARDING GUARANTEES FAIR DEAL FOR FARMER

Declares Definite National Agricultural Policy Is Vital to Country's Welfare.

WOULD PUT END TO PRICE
FIXING OF FARM PRODUCTS

In Address Before Minnesota State Fair Republican Nominee Shows Profound Understanding of Farming and Its Problems.

Minneapolis, (Special).—"The time has come when, as a nation, we must determine upon a definite agricultural policy. We must decide whether we shall undertake to make of the United States a self-sustaining nation—which means that we shall grow within our own boundaries all of the staple food products needed to maintain the highest type of civilization—or whether we shall continue to exploit our agricultural resources for the benefit of our industrial and commercial life, and to leave to posterity the task of finding food enough, by strong-arm methods, if necessary, to support the coming hundreds of millions.

"I believe in the self-sustaining, independent, self-reliant nation, agriculturally, industrially and politically. We are then the guarantors of our own security and are equal to the task."

So declared Senator Harding in a masterly address before the Minnesota State Fair here, in which he revealed a most profound understanding of agriculture, its problems and its relation to the farmer and the consumer in the cities. This speech has been described as the greatest speech on agriculture which has ever been made by a Presidential candidate.

Among other things he said: "A good many years ago a Chinese philosopher uttered a profound truth when he said: 'The well-being of a people is like a tree; agriculture is its root, manufacture and commerce are its branches and its life; if the root is injured the leaves fall, the branches break and the tree dies.'

Cause for Concern.

"It may seem strange to many good people that at this particular time any one should quote this saying of a wise old Chinese. Never in all our history have prices of farm products ruled so high, measured in dollars, as during the past four years. Farm land in the great surplus-producing states has advanced to unheard of prices, with every indication that, but for the tight money conditions, it would go still higher. Apparently the farmers of the land are enjoying unprecedented prosperity. Why then, even by implication, suggest that something may be wrong with our agriculture, and that the trouble may be communicated to our manufactures and commerce? People in the cities are disposed to think that if there is anything wrong it is in the cities where food is selling at such high prices, and not in the country where the food is produced. But both farm and city students of national problems see in the present agricultural situation certain conditions which give cause for real concern to every lover of his country."

He then referred in a most interesting way to the development of the great central west and sketched briefly the settlement of the great central valleys, as follows:

"Through the homestead law the government gave a farm of the richest land in the world to every man who wanted one. Railroads were built, and the prairies were plowed up, and almost overnight the agricultural production of the United States increased by 50 per cent. Grains were produced and sold at the bare cost of utilizing the soil, and the farmers of the older states to the east were smothered by this flood of cheap grain. The only thing that could be done with this smothering of food was to build cities out of it. And great cities we did build, not only in the United States, but across the seas."

He spoke of the hard conditions which came upon the farmers of the central west as a result of their overproduction, and then of the gradual improvement which began about 1903, when the increased population in the cities began to catch up with farm production, and how this increased demand for food was accelerated by the great World War.

Speaking of the part played by the farmer during the war, he said:

Splendid Part of Farmers.

"The splendid part played by the farmers of the nation during the war probably never will be understood or fully appreciated by our people. More than 25 per cent of all our fighting men came from the farms, and after sending their sons to the camps, the fathers and mothers, with the help of the younger children, turned to and produced more food than was ever before produced in the history of the world in the same time and from the same area of land. Their working days were measured not by the clock, but by the number of daylight hours. They took to themselves the responsibility of feeding not only our own people, but also our allies across the sea. In more ways than one our farmers made the war their war, and counted no sacrifice too great to help fight it through to a successful finish. The story of what they did, written by some one who understands it, will furnish one of the most glorious chapters in American history. One thing I may say—in every American conflict from the revolution for independence to the world war for maintained rights, the farmer has been 100 per cent American and ready for every sacrifice."

He then pointed out some of the fortunate results in agriculture, growing out of war conditions, especially the premium put on grain growing at the expense of livestock production. He referred to the heavy losses suffered by many livestock producers and feeders, and pointed out the urgent need of restoring the balance between livestock and grain production as quickly as possible. On this subject he said:

"For two outstanding reasons the maintenance of a normal balance between livestock and grain production is a matter of national concern. One is that we are a meat-eating people, and should have a fairly uniform supply at a reasonable price. Conditions which either greatly stimulate or greatly discourage livestock production result in prices altogether too high for the average consuming public or altogether too low for the producer. The other is that the over-stimulation of grain production depletes the fertility of our land, which is our greatest national asset, and results in a greater supply than can be consumed at a price profitable to the producer, and finally to widespread agricultural distress from which all of our people suffer."

Speaking of the trend of prices of farm products during the next two or three years, he said that no one could forecast them with any accuracy. That as a nation we are undergoing the same experience that the individual undergoes when recovering from a long and dangerous illness. And then he made this significant statement:

"It must be evident, however, to any one who has given the matter even superficial consideration, that we have now come to the end of the long period of agricultural exploitation in the United States. No longer are there great and easy and awaiting areas of fertile land awaiting the land hungry. We have now under the plow practically all of our easily-tillable land, though idle areas await reclamation and development by that genius and determination which ever have made nature respond to human needs. Additions of consequence, which we may make to our farming area, from this time on, must come by putting water on the dry lands of the arid and semi-arid country, or by taking water off of the swamp lands, or by digging the stumps out of the cut-over timber lands of the north and south."

Other Alternative an Unhappy One.

"If we should unhappily choose the course of industrial and commercial promotion at the expense of agriculture, cities will continue to grow at the expense of the rural community, agriculture will inevitably break down and finally destroy the finest rural civilization, with the greatest possibilities the world has ever seen. Decreased farm production will mean dear food and we shall be obliged to send our ships to far-away nations in search of cheap foodstuffs, the importation of which is sure to intensify agricultural discouragement and distress at home."

"If, on the other hand, we shall determine to build up here a self-sustaining nation—and what lover of his country can make a different choice?—then we must at once set about the development of a system of agriculture which will enable us to feed our people abundantly, with some spare for export in years of plenty, and at prices which will insure to the farmer and his family both financial rewards and educational, social and religious living conditions fairly comparable to those offered by the cities. A sound system of agriculture can not be maintained on any other basis. Anything short of a fair return upon invested capital, and a fair wage for the labor which goes into the crops, and enough in addition to enable the farmer to maintain the fertility of his soil, and insure against natural hazards will drive large numbers of farmers to the cities."

Senator Harding made it perfectly clear that this is a problem in which city people have just as much interest as the farmer. That unless we can work out a rational and fair agricultural policy, the drift to the city will continue and our trouble will grow constantly worse.

Speaking of farm organizations, he said the farm organization of the present day is quite different from the organization of the past; that farmers have learned sound principles of organization; that they are adapting to their work the methods which business men and working men have found successful in furthering their own interests. He referred especially to the successful organizations established by the fruit growers of the west and by the grain growers of the northwest, and said the farmers of the corn belt states are also rapidly perfecting the most powerful organization of farmers ever known in the country. He pointed out very frankly the danger that would come to the nation if the problems of the farmer were not frankly recognized, and if the farmer was not given absolutely fair treatment.

He said we have witnessed restricted production of manufactures and of labor, but we have not yet experienced the intentionally restricted production of foodstuffs, and expressed the hope that we never may have that experience.

While frankly recognizing the need of a national agricultural policy, he disclaimed any intention of suggesting that the government should work out an elaborate system of agriculture and then try to impose it on the farmers of the country. He denounced such an effort as utterly repugnant to American ideals. He said that government intervention, whether applied to agriculture or to any other of our great national industries, would stifle ambition, impair efficiency, lessen production and make us a nation of dependent incompetents. He said the farmer requires no special favors at the hands of the government. All he needs is a fair chance and such just consideration for agriculture as we ought to give to a basic industry, and ever seek to promote for our common good.

Senator Harding then spoke of the definite policies to which the Republican party is committed, and which he as its candidate, endorses.

Farm Representation.

First.—The need of farm representation in larger governmental affairs is recognized. During the past seven years the right of agriculture to a voice in governmental administration has been practically ignored, and at times the farmer has suffered grievously as a result. The farmer has a vital interest in our trade relations with other countries, in the administration of our financial policies and in many of the larger activities of the government.

Second.—The right of farmers to form co-operative associations for the marketing of their products must be granted. The parasite in distribution who preys on both producer and consumer must no longer sap the vitality of this fundamental life.

Scientific Study.

Third.—The Republican party pledges itself to a scientific study of agricultural prices and farm production costs, both at home and abroad, with a view to reducing the frequency of abnormal fluctuations here. Stabilization will contribute to everybody's confidence. Farmers have complained bitterly of the frequent and violent fluctuations in prices of farm products, and especially in prices of live stock. They do not find such fluctuations in the products of other industries. In a general way prices of farm products must go up or down, according to whether there is a plentiful crop or a short one. The farmer's raw materials are the fertility of the soil, the sunshine and the rain, and the size of his crops is measured by the supply of these raw materials and the skill with which he makes use of them. He cannot control his production and adjust it to the demand as can the manufacturer. But he can see no good reason why the prices of his products should fluctuate so violently from week to week and sometimes from day to day.

To Stop Price Fixing.

Fourth.—We promise to put an end to unnecessary price fixing of farm products and to ill considered efforts arbitrarily to reduce farm product prices.

Government drives against food prices such as we have experienced during the past two years are vain and useless. The ostensible purpose of such drives is to reduce the price the consumer pays for food. The actual result is unjustly to depress for a time the prices the farmer receives for his grain and live stock, but with no appreciable reduction in the price the consumer pays. Such drives simply give the speculator and the profiteer additional opportunities to add to their exactions.

Fifth.—We favor the administration of the farm loan act so as to help men who farm to secure farms of their own and to give to them long time credits, needed to practice the best methods of diversified farming.

We also favor the authorization of associations to provide the necessary machinery to furnish personal credit to the man, whether land owner or tenant, who is hampered for lack of working capital. Unfortunately as land increases in value tenancy also increases.

An Increasing Evil.

This has been true throughout history. At the present time probably one-half of the high priced land in the corn belt states is farmed by men who, because of lack of capital, find it necessary to rent. This increase in tenancy brings with it evils which are a menace to national welfare. The tenant who lacks sufficient working capital and who too often is working under a short time lease is forced to farm the land to the limit and rob it of its fertility in order to pay the rent. Amid such conditions we have inefficient schools, broken down churches and a sadly limited social life. We should therefore concern ourselves not only in helping men to secure farms of their own and in helping the tenant secure the working capital, he needs to carry on the best methods of diversified farming, but we should work out a system of land leasing which, while doing full justice to both landlord and tenant, will at the same time conserve the fertility of the soil.

Transportation Systems.

Sixth.—We do not longer recognize the right to speculative profit in the operation of our transportation systems, but we are pledged to restore them to the highest state of efficiency as quickly as possible. Agriculture has suffered more severely than any other industry through the inefficient rail road service of the last two years. Many farmers have incurred disastrous losses through inability to market their grain and live stock. Such a condition must not be permitted to continue. We must bring about conditions which will give us prompt service at the lowest possible rates.

Seventh.—We are pledged to the revision of the tariff as soon as conditions shall make it necessary for the preservation of the home market for American labor, American agriculture and American industry. If we are to build up a self sustaining agriculture here at home the farmer must be protected from unfair competition from those countries where agriculture is still being exploited and where the standards of living on the farm are much lower than here. We have asked for higher American standards; let us maintain them.

So long as America can produce the foods we need I am in favor of buying from America first.

Fewer Land Hogs.

Under a sound system of agriculture, fostered and safeguarded by wise and fair administration of state and federal government, the farmers of the United States can feed our people for many centuries—perhaps indefinitely. Farming is not an auxiliary; it is the main plant, and geared with it, inseparably, is every wheel of transportation and industry. America could not go on with a dissatisfied farming people, and no nation is secure where land hunger abides. We need fewer land hogs, who menace our future, and more fat hogs for ham and bacon. We need less belligerence in cultivating a quadrilateral crop of votes and more consideration for farming as our basic industry. We need less appeal to class consciousness and more resolute independence in promptly solving our problems. We need rest and recuperation for a soil which has been worked out in agitation and more and better harvests in the inviting fields of mutual understanding. We need less of grief about the ills which we may charge to the neglect of our citizenship and more confidence in just government, along with determination to make and hold it just.

WHEN YOU LAY YOUR PAPER ASIDE

After you've read the news, have you gotten all the valuable information out of it? Not until you have read the advertisements.

Reading the advertisements should be just as much a part of your day as reading the news columns.

The advertisements in your favorite newspaper are a daily record of what your local merchants have laid in store to meet your needs and add to your comfort.

They tell you what the manufacturers of these goods, who are constantly striving to please the great American public, have done to add to your advantages and comforts. The news, while always interesting, may often concern you only in a general way.

The advertisements are almost certain to tell you something that may mean a great deal to your home life or your business and social welfare.
